Praise for Speed with Which Immigrants Get Jobs

JERUSALEM POST BUREAU
LYDIA AIRPORT, Sunday. — Great praise of the Government and local authorities for the speed with which the immigrants were found employment was expressed by Sir Geoffrey Ince, Permanent Secretary to the British Ministry of Labour, before leaving here today for home by Cyprus Airways after a 10-day stay as guest of the Histadrut.

Sir Geoffrey, who stressed that Israel as an established fact is already taken for granted in Britain, told the Jerusalem Post that he had imagined the influx of new immigrants would be bound to result in many unemployed, and he had been very surprised to find that this was not the case. He warmly commended the "ship to farm" scheme for its success in the quick absorption of newcomers.

Noting the great development taking place everywhere, the visitor particularly mentioned housing which had exceeded all his expectations. He had also been much impressed with the excellent training given to young people, whose vitality augured well for the future of the country.

Among those who saw off Sir Geoffrey were Mr. W. H. Marsh, Labour Attaché to the British Embassy, and Mr. J. Marsh, and officials of the International Department of the Histadrut.

Duo-Pianists Arrive For I.P.O. Concerts

JERUSALEM POST BUREAU
LYDIA AIRPORT, Sunday. — VITTA Vronsky and Victor Bablin, the celebrated duo-pianists who are to appear with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra in its first subscription series, arrived here by L.A. flight this morning. This is the third visit of the husband-wife team but the first as regular I.P.O. soloists. Their previous two visits had been taken up with recitals. However, they also plan to fit a number of recitals into their one-month stay. They are members of the Faculty of the Institute of Music in Aspen, Colorado, and last year initiated a summer scholarship scheme for young Israeli pianists. This year's recipients were the piano team of Alexander Eden and Bracha Volkovitch. It is hoped that this scheme will become an annual event. Mr. Bablin told the Jerusalem Post.

The programme of the first I.P.O. series which begins on Wednesday has been changed in order to meet Maestro Vronsky's wish to conduct an Israel work on his first appearance with the ensemble. He selected Yehuda Wronsky's "Rondo Patetico" which will be given its premiere performance by the orchestra.

Justice Olshan Sharply Criticizes Former Rehovot Municipality

Sharp criticism of the former Rehovot Municipality and its Council was expressed yesterday by Justice Olshan, President of the Supreme Court. In an oblique allusion he also criticized the Ministries of Justice and Police for allowing "private examining magistrates." The authorities should take the initiative into their own hands, and see that persons were brought to justice before the law and not by "private examining magistrates" which are maintained by many public bodies.

Judge Rejects Appeal On Acre Elections

JERUSALEM POST BUREAU
HAIFA, Sunday. — The District Court Judge, Mr. M. Etzioni, today rejected an appeal by Mr. Ramel Khoury, Acre municipal councillor (Communist) to declare the municipal elections in Acre null and void because of certain alleged irregularities.

Burg's Testimony

In the District Court, Burg had claimed that he gave the money to Mr. Mordechai Shesh, head of the Water Department, but the latter had claimed that he had not received it. The District Court Judge stated that he believed Shesh, but added he could not believe that Burg had given him the money. Justice Olshan remarked yesterday that the Supreme Court could express no opinion on Mr. Shesh, since he was not before the Court, but it could not ignore the fact that Mr. Shesh knew of the collection of the money and did nothing about it. It was his duty to see that his department functioned properly.

NITZANA

ed under arrangements agreed on in the course of last week's negotiations on the matter.

This is taken to mean that Egypt has agreed in principle to cooperate with Israel and the U.N. in defining the border with physical objects.

If Egypt goes along with the operation, it would approximate to a revision of the agreement of last January. This agreement was later broken by Egypt, and the border-marking was undertaken by Israel with the assistance of U.N. representatives.

The placing of Israel troops in her demilitarized zone followed the destruction of frontier pillars by Egyptian troops.

On the problem of the administration of the Mixed Arab-Jewish Commission headquarters, the Foreign Ministry spokesman said:

"The Mixed Arab-Jewish Commission headquarters in the village of al-Azla will be operated according to the arrangements made by the Egyptian and Israeli governments and the U.N. representatives."

In the past, the Egyptians have breached the 1949 agreement by introducing into the area more than the stipulated number of troops. The Egyptian personnel have been received from Gen. Burns that the Egyptian troops will not exceed the specified number.

The guards at the M.A.C. headquarters are changed fortnightly. The operation was supervised by the Chief of Staff, the police forces to be retained in the area. The situation emerging from this arrangement would bring about a measure of equality with the Egyptian forces stationed across the line.

In view of the results obtained since the Egyptian forces entered the Nitzana Demilitarized Zone on September 21, and the discussions that took place for about 10 days thereafter, the operation was considered in Jerusalem as both "justified and successful."

On October 2, 1955, both Egyptian and Israeli military forces withdrew from the demilitarized zone of El Azla, according to the schedule set by the Chief of Staff, UNTSO, and agreed to by the Governments of Egypt and Israel.

Israel's Foreign Ministry spokesman reported that U.N. military observers had confirmed that the withdrawal of the military forces as well as the dismantling of the Egyptian military installations in the area had been completed by 10.00 a.m. local time, and proceeded until sunset.

Teams of U.N. military observers will conduct a general reconnaissance of the demilitarized zone tomorrow, October 3, in order to ensure that the withdrawal has been completed and the agreement reached.

Laughs Galore at Gymkhana

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
Entertainment rather than athletic prowess was the order of the day at the second annual Israel Gymkhana at Kirya Stadium in Jerusalem yesterday afternoon. The Donkey and Car race again this year was the highlight of the day's events. Despite the unexpected heat and strong shawar, attendance was good.

This year's contests in which a total of 34 cars and eight motorcycles took part, were somewhat better planned than those of last year although considerable confusion was in evidence even on the part of the judges and attendants.

One of the most popular items, a repeat of last year's programme, was the Musical Chairs competition. In this event the cars were to proceed in a large circle to the accompaniment of music while a passenger in each vehicle had to run towards a group of chairs in the centre when the music and the vehicles came to a halt. A last-minute hitch developed when it became impossible to start the cars which were waiting practically bumper to bumper because there was no room for the cars to proceed. This difficulty was soon resolved and the game proceeded in high spirits with the attendants helping to sort out the competitors and broken chairs which accumulated after each round.

One of the winners of the obstacle race was the team of Mr. A. Solal and his wife, Glida, the latter a former British skating star. The pair had participated in last year's Gymkhana.

Other events included Obstacle and Egg and Spoon races for motorcycles, a Coconuts d'Allegance, a Potato and Bottle race, and a Ping race.

Other winners were Mr. S. Hirschman, Obstacle race, Mr. Puzh in the Motorcycle Obstacle race, Mr. Hiron in the Motor race, and Spoon race, Mr. Grilid, in the Coconuts d'Allegance (large cars), Mrs. Van Housen (medium cars), Mrs. Hochman (old cars), Mrs. Van Housen, Potato and Bottle race, and Mrs. Hirschman, Ping race.

Ex-President Peron Leaves By Air for Exile in Paraguay

BUENOS AIRES, Sunday (Reuters). — Deposed President Juan Peron left here by air today for Asuncion, Paraguay.

He travelled in a Paraguayan Catalina flying boat, escorted by two Argentine naval aircraft. He was reportedly accompanied by Captain Barbita, head of the Argentine naval mission in Paraguay.

General Peron had sought refuge on board a Paraguayan gunboat off Buenos Aires when his regime toppled on September 13.

It was believed that one reason for the trip to Asuncion by hydroplane instead of by the little Paraguayan gunboat, was that reports were circulating in Buenos Aires that Peronists were massing along the River Parana in the hope of saving their leader.

Rear-Admiral Alberto Telereche, Vice-President of the Peron regime, and now held prisoner by the provisional government, said today that if Peron goes abroad he will cause trouble.

He is very able and has people at his disposal who are willing to give up their lives," Admiral Telereche told naval intelligence officers, according to political sources.

He said he had heard Peron say on several occasions that he was in a position to make life "impossible" for any government that succeeded him. The Admiral had seen people in the lower class sections of Comstock, Barracas and Beresford "crying for Peron" after the revolution.

"If you do not destroy the idol, this government will have a serious problem." (Reuters, UP)

Eden Sees Queen On Cabinet Changes

LONDON, Sunday (Reuters). — Sir Anthony Eden returned today from a 24-hour visit to Queen Elizabeth in Scotland, during which he is believed to have discussed with her a forthcoming Government reshuffle.

There is widespread speculation that the Prime Minister will make changes in the services departments, and that Mr. Anthony Head, 48, the War Minister, and Lord de Lisle and Dudley, 46, Air Minister, may be transferred.

The Prime Minister's visit to Balmoral has inevitably reawakened speculation that the Queen — who can at any time discuss any matter with her First Minister — would talk with him about the rumoured romance between her sister, Princess Margaret, and Group Captain Peter Townsend.

Sharp Eyes of Beersheba Police

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
BEERSHEBA, Sunday. — A man came dashing into the police station here on Friday, and after he had recovered his breath, told the policeman on duty that he had been travelling from Sdom in his jeep and had been fired on by infiltrators. He said that one of the bullets had pierced the windshield of the vehicle and that he had narrowly escaped with his life.

Some of his excitement passed to the police, but they retained sufficient presence of mind to examine the jeep and found that the bullet had entered the glass from the inside. The man explained this by saying that his attackers had fired from all directions and this had obviously been one of the bullets that had come from behind. The police made a closer examination and

While the Egyptian army purchases in Eastern bloc countries have been occupying the headlines, a small victory appears to have been won at Nitzana.

Ten days ago, when an Israeli unit moved in to occupy the demilitarized area, the situation there was critical: two Egyptian check-posts had dug in on the Israeli side of the international frontier and Egyptian soldiers had torn out border markers set up with the assistance of U.N. officers.

From June, when a joint Israel-U.N. team of surveyors discovered that the two Egyptian posts were on the wrong side of the frontier, to September 22, when Israel forces moved in, Egypt had made a show of agreeing to remove the posts, and failed to do so.

It was not a matter in which the U.N. was able or willing to take decisive action, beyond finding that the posts should be withdrawn; to judge by earlier parallels, such as that of the Syrians at Mishmar HaZev, the longer the Egyptians remained on Israel soil, the more difficult it would have become to dislodge them, and the more likely they would have been to demand some equivalent "concession" from Israel for their ultimate withdrawal.

Thus Israel action became imperative. But for the presence of the U.N. at Afula, however, and the untiring commuting of General Burns between Cairo and Jerusalem, it is unlikely that this small corrective action could have been carried out without bloodshed and loss of life. If the withdrawal proves to have been properly carried out by both sides it will show that it is possible to develop a border technique that is both efficient and need not lead to counter attacks and reprisals.

That is not to say that Israel was invited by the U.N. to take action on this occasion any more than on any other, but in fact the action taken was in execution of U.N. instructions which the Egyptian forces had accepted without protest, but failed to heed.

It is here that the crux of the present situation in Nitzana lies. Egypt has lately made a practice of agreeing blandly to U.N. orders and rulings. These include, for example, the proposals for the pacification of the Gaza Strip, which Egypt later disregarded completely or amended in such a way as to frustrate them. There is a world of difference between the barbed wire barrier that was proposed as an obstacle for infiltrators by General Burns, and the barbed wire fence for Egyptian advanced posts, which Col. Nasser would like to see put up. The former, if adequately patrolled and guarded, might end all but strictly military infiltration. Nasser's proposal would allow ample freedom for gangs to roam over the frontier area, and merely make it more difficult for Israel forces to pursue them if they took shelter in, or received support from, the fortified areas.

According to the U.N. authorities, the Egyptians have now not only undertaken to withdraw their illegal check-posts and reduce to the agreed proportions their armaments on their side of the security zone, but they will also take part in the marking of the frontier. A step forward has been taken at Nitzana towards the enforcing of the Armistice Agreements. It will remain to be seen whether this step was sufficient to ensure that the Egyptians will carry out the undertaking they have given, or whether this was again intended only for consumption abroad.

Yesterday's Press Foreign Policy Failures

HERUT again attacks the Israel Foreign Ministry. In his opinion, the Ministry has consistently failed, even as it is failing now on the arms-to-Egypt problem, to take the bull by the horns. Instead of offering "explanations" and expressing "concern," the Prime Minister should enunciate a foreign policy worthy of its name that would alter the situation so that it would be others that would be asking for explanations and expressing concern.

"Lamerhav" (Abdullah Hava) feels that all its faith in the Socialist, Israeli and up-dashed with their selling arms to Egypt, but attacks the Foreign Ministry for having been instrumental in bringing about Israel's isolation in the international sphere, causing setback upon setback.

"Kol Ha'am" (Communist) uses Israel's vote on the Algerian question to point out that our foreign policy always sticks with the West despite the fact that Algeria deserves self-determination. It too insists that this has helped to isolate Israel and less there is a basic change, this isolation, fraught with extreme danger, is bound to persist.

"Hamodia" (World Aguda) feels that there is no telling what the consequences of France's leaving the Assembly will be, but there is no doubt that the move took the West by surprise.

"Omer" (Histadrut) says that Israel's delivery of a note on the Akaba embargo to the Security Council is in line with her determination not to bring up such questions for discussion, which invariably results in blurring the issues, but simply to keep the Council informed of the facts.

"Davar" (Histadrut) writes that the list of Arab countries applying to the USSR for arms is growing apace. The Czechoslovak deal, according to the paper, is only a means of extorting concessions from the West, for it really weakens arms that the Arabs want.

"Hahaker" (General Zionist), discussing the drawn-out coalition discussions, thinks that Ben-Gurion should realize that there is a limit and should return his mandate to the President, while "Haaretz" (non-party) points out that although the Progressives have made concessions which make nonsense of their stand on labour exchanges, Magpan and Abdulla Hava's seem decided set against a compromise.

Noting that the western countries take our citrus and diamonds, "Al Hamishmar" (Magan) points out that our trade with Socialist countries, especially Poland, has been steadily going down. The Polish goods listed in the trade pact with Poland, as well as those enumerated in the Polish Foreign Trade Minister's letter on expanding trade with Israel, are vital to us and should be warmly welcomed.

"Omer" (Histadrut) says that duktion of Oriental tobacco for home consumption as well as for export, and the improvement in the peasant's standard of living, so evident from his dress and from the boom in building with 3,000 rooms added in rural Galilee in 1954 alone. There follow chapters dealing with substantial achievements in the fields of labour, health, social and religious affairs, some of the latter based on material and figures published in The Jerusalem Post. Last but not least comes education, in which a veritable revolution has been wrought since Mandate days.

But public services, after all, are provided to some extent by the most backward states—like our neighbours. What really raises the Israeli Arab high above his kinsmen anywhere else in the Middle East is his role in public life, his participation in free elections up to the parliamentary level, and his freedom of expression. The columns of the Hebrew and Arabic press in this country are open to his criticism and let him speak with a frankness that would be unthinkable in any Arab country. The best criterion of the freedom enjoyed by Israeli Arabs is the high regard in which they hold our courts, where the orator and the writ of habeas corpus have proved a frequent and effective safeguard of their rights.

Certain aspects of Arab life and progress have been glossed over. Only one paragraph is given to the 17,000 Druses in Israel, and it fails to mention their 25-year-old tradition of friendship with the Jews, their active part in the War of Independence, or their participation by the thousand in the Israel Defence Army, the Border Police, and other security forces. Numerous specific problems of the Beduin are also discussed inadequately.

Next comes the progress accomplished in our 102 Arab villages: the sixfold rise in farm output over a period of six years and its part in the production of the Jewish state.

There is a solution to the problem of banking, trade, unions, shopkeepers, industrialists and housewives to try and forestall the impending doom. The weeping and wailing from Canberra threaten to drown the whining of the Jets as they swoop overhead celebrating Air Force week.

YOKAWA EXPORT

6/100 mm. ISRAEL'S BEST BLADES

At the Cinema

VERA Cruz (Or Gil, Jem) filmed entirely in Mexico, set in the midst of the civil war between Maximilian and Juarez. The historical background is somewhat doubtful, but the acting of Gary Cooper, Lurt Lancaster and Cesar Romero is truly brilliant. Brilliant also are the colour and the mise en scene, catching the atmosphere of perfection. There are some excellent Mexican shots, including Aztec ruins and a fiesta, but the background, however fascinating, is never allowed to interfere with the breathless pace of the film.

Another "highbrow" western of "High Noon" quality, the suspense of which is attained in various scenes. Excellent entertainment and even more.

Arabs Responsible for Exodus During War

By GIDEON WEIGERT

"THE Arabs in Israel" an exceedingly well-illustrated 91-page English pamphlet just published by the Foreign Ministry, may partly fill the long-felt need for some kind of counter to Arab propaganda, which has been proclaiming in the U.S. and other English-speaking countries that the Israeli Arab minority is being discriminated against and lives in a "ghetto" world.

Over a score of experts from the Foreign Ministry and the Office of the Prime Minister's Adviser on Arab Affairs have had a hand in the preparation of the material and the choosing of the attractive photographs which reflect the enormous progress made here in seven years by Israel's 185,000 Arabs, who in this short space of time have left the social and economic standards of Arab-governed countries far behind.

The book opens with the mass exodus of the Arabs from Israel during the War of Independence, and quotes such personalities as the Greek Catholic Archbishop of Galilee, Mr. George Hakim, on the historic fact that the Arab leaders, and not the Jews, were responsible for it. The Arab leaders had promised the masses that the Arab armies would soon crush the Zionist state and that there was no need for panic or fear of a long exile.

Mr. Hakim wrote in a Lebanese newspaper in 1948 in "The Economist," in the same year, "The Jews in control of Haifa urged all Arabs to remain in the town, guaranteeing them protection and security."

Next comes the progress accomplished in our 102 Arab villages: the sixfold rise in farm output over a period of six years and its part in the production of the Jewish state.

Australian Economy Hit by Conflicts

By ALBERT BENJON SUPER, Melbourne.

MR. Menzies has proved the truth of the old fable of the boy who cried wolf. For years now, the Liberals have used the threat of the hungry Russian wolf at the main plank of their policy. People having been hoodwinked by this bogey put the Liberals back into power so that the scourge might be effectively combated. The crowning achievement was the defection of Petrov and the pyrotechnics which followed. But when the Petrov Report was at last tabled in Parliament recently, there were no fireworks; in fact, the report turned out to be a very damp squib.

But the cost to Australia has been five million, the figure is more in the vicinity of $60m. The severance of relations with Russia has been a crippling blow to Australian economy, and the economic crisis which is supposed to be at Australia's door is a direct result of this election blow to the Menzies Government.

His account of the defection of the missing McLean and Burgess is being heralded as a master-disclosure, but still not worth $60m.

At the present moment, Menzies is calling emergency meetings of banking, trade, unions, shopkeepers, industrialists and housewives to try and forestall the impending doom. The weeping and wailing from Canberra threaten to drown the whining of the Jets as they swoop overhead celebrating Air Force week.
